Knowing our helpers better! Field Trip to town police station at Karur

Experiential and hands on learning approach is one of the many hallmarks of Gurukul education. Lessons are made more interesting by connecting them to practical life situations. Middle school students of Karur Gurukul participated in a field visit to the local police station on 7th January 2017. An interactive session with the D.S.P Kummaraju and Inspector Rani was the highlight of the visit amidst other learning experiences. What better way to understand the roles and responsibilities of the police department than knowing from the police officers themselves? The inquisitiveness and the active involvement of our students during the session, was much appreciated by them. Some of the questions the children asked were about how the police officers got their promotions, what the criteria were for the same, what challenges they faced in the system internally and externally, what kind of weapons and ammunition they had for managing and ensuring security, law and order and many more. The DSP during his talk, emphasised on the hazards of misusing mobile phones, internet surfing, social media like facebook & Instagram through a few instances and encouraged children to be wise and careful while embracing technology. A tour of the police station, especially the women's wing, the control room and its operations added value to the visit. It was indeed an exciting and enriching learning experience for all our Gurukul students.

Lets' go grocery shopping!!

Have you ever gone to a supermarket with your teachers when you were 5 years old? Well, Equitas Gurukul Kindergarten kids enjoyed a lovely morning walking through the rows of food and other consumables. Children recalled their classroom learnings about 'Market'. They identified the things they found in the supermarket like grains, veggies, fruits, domestic wares, cups, plates and many more. They were quite excited to see the rows and rows of neatly stacked goods and narrated to each other about their experience with their parents. Children also learnt about the concept of paying money to buy the goods, how billing is done and who helps us to make our shopping easier. The institution extends its gratitude to both Kannan and Sri Krishna Departmental stores for giving us this lovely opportunity.

Let us all be safe on road!!

As an epilogue to the field visit to the Karur police station, students and teachers of Karur Gurukul enacted a street play through mime, a powerful theatrical medium of expression at one of the most crowded places of Karur-Vengamedu. The chief objective of this show was to spread awareness among the public about road safety rules. The campaign highlighted the following rules:

- Wear helmet while driving
- Do not use mobile while driving
- Do not over load your vehicle with extra passengers.
- Cross the road at the zebra crossing only and not at the median

Classroom lessons taught in science and social sciences were brought to practical real life situations thereby reflecting our mission to make our children responsible citizens. 'When I teach someone else a concept, I have learnt it 100% myself'. This was well portrayed by the Mime act. DSP of Karur police station, who had made this request to our school to support this social cause, appreciated our students and teachers for their meaningful contribution. The public and the department members were surprised at the skill and talent displayed by the Equitas Gurukul children for this social cause and applauded the school management for such wonderful initiatives.
